Goodbye to Old and Hello to New!

We've had a busy summer season here at [Heli Canada Adventures](http://Heli Canada Adventures). Not only have we been up in the alpine providing our guests with those breathtaking views and perfect photo opportunities, but we've also been busy moving our office. Nothing major that will affect you, our client, but a jump across town has provided us with a fresh start to our upcoming winter season. More space to breathe and think, which means happy staff and in turn, happy guests! All our contact info remains the same. Our new office should be up and running in September some time. We look forward to continuing to work hard for our clients in our new, fresh space.

Another bit of news: we are finishing the new summer website! By now you have probably checked out our revamped winter site at revelstokeskitouring.com. Stay tuned for the same great transformation of our previous summer site into a new snazzy one in the very near future. By the way, have you "liked" us on Facebook yet? You can find us at Heli Canada Adventures or Revelstoke Ski Touring. Check out our photos or make a comment; we'd love to hear from you. Also, look for our Summer 2012 prices, which will be up on the website in October.

As we all know, our spring wasn't the driest. Fortunately, this didn't slow us or our guests down at Heli-Canada Adventures. An extra bit of late snow

Tips from the Team:

We hope you've been inspired by this late-season gorgeous weather and are planning a fall hike, picnic, photography course or trek with Heli-Canada Adventures. If so, it might be a good idea to think about what clothing you want to pack. We wish we could guarantee perfect weather, but Mother Earth is fickle, and we want you to be prepared for any type of weather up there; your experience will be much more pleasant if you stay comfortable.

We have found that layering solves the problem of being too cold when you take off a single heavy coat or too warm when you're wearing it. The popular three-layer system will allow you to peel or add as you need it and as the weather/altitude changes.

Base Layer -You want something that will wick moisture away from your skin to keep you cool while you hike. Capilene is proving to be a wonderful material, keeping you cool and dry and not cold and clammy like cotton sometimes can do. Close fitting is ideal, so that the material can do its job, sitting right on the skin. A close fit also eliminates bulk, for ease of movement.

Middle Layer -The purpose of the middle layer is to create a space of still or dead air around you, to insulate, which will help to decrease the heat being exchanged between your body and the outside world. The most popular material for this purpose is fleece. Bunting and pile is also fleece, but with a different weave. Ask before you buy.

Outer Layer -The outer layer is usually a windbreaker or some other type of shell. The purpose is threefold: to protect you from wind, snow or rain; to wick moisture away from your body (breathable material is ideal); and to protect you from any scrapes or cuts nature may throw at you.

INTERESTING TIDBITS . . . DID YOU KNOW?

In 2000, Revelstoke had the honour of hosting Raid the North Extreme, a televised 6-day multi-sport adventure race. They joined a select group of communities across Canada that provides both spectacular beauty and intense wilderness challenges for participants. Clearly our area stands out when it comes to getting out into nature and having a blast!

didn't have any effect on both our staff and our clients, new and old, that were chomping at the bit to helicopter in to picnic, hike, trek or climb. The energy and enthusiasm was fabulous, and we had yet another successful summer season. The good weather eventually kicked in, and the warm, balmy days have been unbeatable as of late. The silver lining to our somewhat strange weather patterns is that those incredible alpine flowers and foliage came out late and are staying late! That means September will be awesome for forays into the backcountry. The colours
